Students gain more ownership to the story when they are able to illustrate their own story. After illustrating, have the child tell you/another student what the story is about.

Substitute Teacher

A story about when there is a substitute teacher

_____ is my teacher. I like it when my teacher is at school.

Sometimes my teacher is not at school or in the classroom. This is OK. My teacher might be sick, going to a doctor's appointment, going to a meeting or helping kids in the hallway with work.

When my teacher is not in the classroom I will have a substitute teacher.

This is OK. The substitute will be gone when my teacher comes back.

My substitute's job is to teach me. Sometimes she does things differently than my teacher or makes mistakes. Sometimes this makes me feel confused or upset.

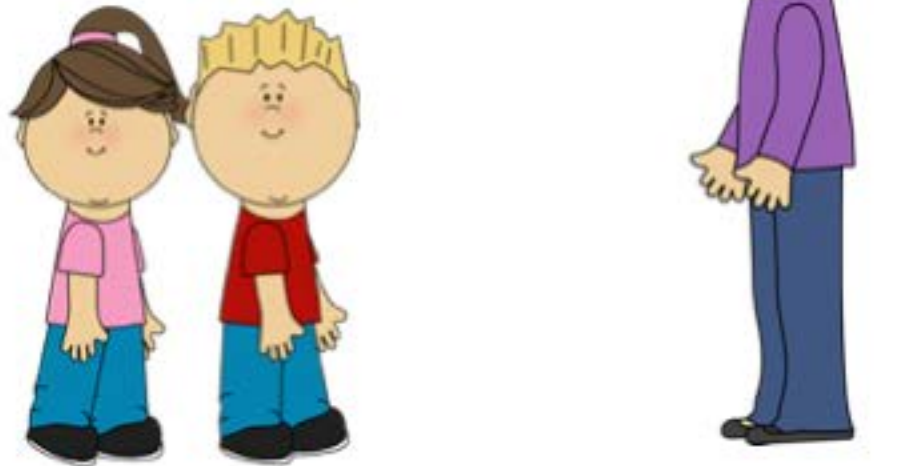

I should try to remember that my substitute might feel confused too. She is trying to do a good job and follow the directions my teacher left.

She is trying her best to do her job and teach the children. I should try to do my work and follow directions.

Please get out your
book.

My teacher will be happy that I tried my best to do my work and follow directions from my substitute teacher.
